Origin of Iron Duke

Origin of Iron Duke

The Iron Duke, of course, was Wellington, but he came by the nickname in a roundabout way. He was never so called until long after Waterloo. An iron steanship, a novelty at the time, was built in the Mersey and named the Duke of Wellington, and so the vessel came to be known as the Iron Duke, the transition being easy and obvious. It was the duke's union of resolution and physical energy which made the popular name for the Mersey built steamship to fit him like a perfect cap. Such, at least, is the explanation of his biographer, Sir Herbert Maxwell.

LIFE'S SUNSHINE

Gladdens Those Who Regain New

Health and Strength When the glow of health comes back to sallow cheeks; when languid weakness gives place to vigor; when you notice some pale, exhausted invalid restored to active health—enquire. More than likely you will find the cure to have been yet another of the thousands already wrought by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Headache an: neuraigh, St. Vitus Dance and twitching of the limbs, indigestion and rheu matism, eczema and disfiguring eruptions, and the aliments of growing girls and women all disappear when the veins are filled with the new, rich red blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make. Here is one instance among thousands; Mr. F. Ashford, Haileybury, Ont., says: "Some years ago I completed a lengthy term of service in India, the last three years being spent in the beautiful but treacherous Poshawar Valley. Ague and dengue fever were rife and although I was fortunate enough to escape a severe attack of either, on my return home it soon became apparent that the enervating climatic conditions had left their ravages on my constitution. In short the reaction had set in, and inexorable nature was exacting a severe toil from years of strenuous labor. My first warning of the impending breakdown were sever pains in the back of the head and eyes, insomnia, irritability, a general anaemic condition and an indefinable nervousness. Life had lost its zest, work became impossible and companionship intolerable. It really seemed that I was swiftly passing to that stage where nervousness ends and insanity begins, when by chance I read an advertisement of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I confess I was skeptical of them doing what doctors had failed to do, but concluded that the cost was small, and perhaps, the chance in their favor, and so decided to try them. To my joy there was soon an improvement, and a continuance of the treatment effected a complete cure. I was now as fit and as healthy as any man and am ever grateful that the lucky perusal of an advertisement brought to my notice the wonderful curative properties of Dr. Williams' Pink

Harry Wardrop came back from the city at 4 o'clock, while Hunter was in the midst of his investigation. I told him then what had happened and with this new apprehension added to the shock of the night before he looked as though his nerves were ready to snap.

Wardrop was a man of perhaps Wardrop was a man of perhaps twenty-seven, as tall as I, although not so heavy, with direct blue eyes and fair hair, altogether a manly and prepossessing sort of fellow. I was not surprised that Margery Fleming had found him attractive. He had the blond hair and offhand manner that women seem to like. I am dark myself.

He seemed surprised to find Hunter there, and not particularly pleased, but he followed us to the upper floor and watched silently while Hunter went over the two rooms. Besides the large chest of drawers in the main attic Hunter found perhaps half a doz-en drops of blood, and on the edge of the open drawer there were traces of more. In the inner room two trunks had been moved out nearly a foot, as he found by the faint dust that had been under them. Then he took out his notebook.

Have you a pencil or pen, Mr. Knox, be asked me, but I had none. Wardrop felt in his pockets.

I have lost my fountain pen some where around the house today, he said irritably. Here's a pencil—not much of one Hunter began his interrogations. How old was Miss Maitland—Miss Jane, I mean?

Jane, I mean?
Sixty-five, from Margery.
She had always seemed rational?
Not eccentric or childish?

There could have been no such sounds, I said. I sat in my room and smoked until a quarter to 2. I heard nothing until then, when I heard Mr. Wardrop trying to get into the house. I went down to admit him, and—found the front door open about an inch. Hunter wheeled on Wardrop.

Then—will you be good enough to tell me where you did go. I have reasons for wanting to know.

Hang your reasons. Look here, Mr. Hunter, do you think I would hur a hair of that old lady's head Do you think I came here last night and killed her, or whatever it is that has happened to her, and then went out and tried to get in again through the window?

The window, I suggested, and he went over to it. When he came back he had a rather peculiar expression.

In the first place, he began, we can take it for granted that unless she was crazy or sleepwalking she didn't go out in her night clothes, and there is nothing of her's missing. She was not taken in a carriage provided she not taken in a carriage, provided she was taken at all. There not a mark of wheels on that drive newer than a week, and besides, you say you heard nothing.

Nothing, I said positively.

Then unless she went away in a balloon, where it wouldn't matter what she had on, she is still around the premises. It depends on how badly she was hurt.

Are you sure it was she who was hurt? I asked. That print of a hand—that is not Miss Jane's.

In reply Munter led the way down the stairs to the place where the stain on the stair rail stood out, ugly and distinct. He put his own heavy hand distinct. He put his own heavy hand on the rail just below it. Suppose, he said, suppose you grip to your hand?

It spreads, I acknowledged, seeing what he meant.

Now look at that stain. Look at the short fingers. Why it's a child's hand beside mine. The breadth is from pressure. It might be figured out this way. The fingers, you notice, point down the stairs. In some way, let us say, the burglar, for want of a better name, gets into the house. He used a ladder resting against that window by the chest of drawers.

Keeping the Body in Repair

Nature intended that the body should do its own repairing—and it would do so were it not for the fact that most of us live other than a natural life.

Nature didn't intend that we should wear corsets, tight collars or shoes, nor live in badly ventilated and draughty houses, nor eat and drink some of the things that we do, nor ride in street cars when we should walk. The consequence is that the body when it gets out of order must look for outside help to make the accessary repairs.

Humpy Thinks Fast.

These wild thoughts were passing through Humpy's mind when the un-dertaker came to the door and beckoned to him and said:

Boy, do you want to carn a dime?" Yessir.

"What kind of a boy are you?"

"A noble one, sir. Please can I see that dog cremated?"

The dog walked off very cheerfully The dog walked off very cheerfully in the boy's society. He had got very tired, even if he was a dog, at gazing into the window at the somber stock carried at knock down prices. All went serency for two blocks. The dog was glad he didn't need anything in his master's line, and the boy was glad. he was earning another dime. Ther came an interruption. A policeman beckoned to Humpy to halt and then

"Me laddiebuck, you can consider yourself as pinched!"

"Who pinched me?" asked Humpy. "The undersigned did and does, are pinched for stealing that dog."

"I didn't steal him. He belongs to Mr. Bangs, the undertaker. I am leading him home."

"Boy, don't lie to me! That dog belongs to the rich and powerful Mrs. Derwent Derwenter. He was stolen from her last night, and there is a general nlarm out. The commissioner has assured her with his hand on his heart that not an officer among the 12,000 shall eat or sleep until this dog is restored to her. For three blocks more Humpy and his charge got along without an adventure. They they ran across a tobacconist standing at the door of his shop smoking a two-for-five that he had just invented to sell as a straight ten center, "By George!" he exclaimed as he stepped out, "but it seems good to see my dog again."

"It's not your dog," replied Humpy as he tried to pass on. "What! What! Not my dog? Don't try to bluff it out, you young dog stealer! Nero was stolen from me two months ago. If you were not the thief how did you come by him?" "He belongs to Mr. Bangs, the undertaker of Acorn street."

"Never!"

"And I'm leading him home."

"Right you are." You have led him right here to his home, and here's a nickel for you. Mebbe you are an honest boy after all." "But you can't have him. If he was your dog wouldn't he wag his tail at you? He hasn't wagged it once.

"That's 'cause he expects a licking for running away."

With that he tried to grab the chain away, and the dog bit him on the hand and ran into his open shop. There were four men at work in there, and be gave each one a nin and knocked over two show cases. Then he ran down the street half a block and bit a girl sweeping off the sidewalk. Then be followed up a baker's wagon and bit the horse on the leg. He was after an old woman with a market basket when the tobacconist shouted:

THE FORBIDDEN FRUIT.

Maybe It Was a Quince Eve Ate Is the Garden of Eden.

Why and how it has happened that the apple has been spoken of as the fruit that was forbidden in the Garden of Eden is one of the great puzzles of biblical scholars. The fact is that in Genesis iii., where the incident of the eating of this fruit of the "tree of knowledge of good and evil" is mentioned, no name whatever is given to that fruit. All that is said is: when the woman saw that the tree was good for food, and that it was pleasant to the eyes, and a tree to be desired to make one wise, she took of the fruit thereof, and did eat, and gave also unto her busband with her; and he did eat." (Verse 6.)

In fact, scholars doubt very seriously whether it was the apple at all. They suggest that all evidence points to it having been the quince, the fragrance of which was held in the highest esteem by the Orientals. Another point in favor of the quince is that it is the fruit which was sacred to Venus, the goddess of love, and in a great many of the ancient writings the quince is very frequently mentioned in this manner. In Babylonia ishtar took the place of Venus in the Roman mythology, and it should be remembered that the story of the creation originated with the Babylonians. All evidence seems to point away from the apple having been the "forbidden fruit." and toward the quince as having been that fruit of the "tree of knowledge of good and e.l."-Tit-Bits.

DREAMING OF FALLING.

What Happened In the One Known Case of Hitting the Ground.

Probably all of us have dreamed that we were falling down the back stairs or a high cliff, then gliding swimmingly off into space. This dream gives the same sensation as a rapidly descending elevator or a fast swaving swing. We are worried for the instant about what will happen when we strike bottom, but we never strike Either we are off on another dream before that disastrous event happens or we awake.

There is an old superstition that if one ever hit the ground the shock would kill the dreamer, but this is difficult of proof, for, as our Irish neighbor might remark, the only way it could be proved would be to have the dreamer wake up dead and tell us

4 QUEER LAKE

With Neither Inlet Nor Outlet It Has a Mysterious Tide.

There is a curious Swiss lake, Lake Marjelan, which at regular intervals completely disappears and does not be-gin to reall until the following winter or spring. On these occasions it empties itself so rapidly that the Rhono rises several meters in a few hours and overflows its banks.

But it is not necessary to go to Switzerland in order to find a freakish lake. There is a pond in the center of Long Island, at the present end of the Motor parkway, called Lake Ron-konkoma. It has neither inlet nor outlet and lies at the foot of the bills that form the backbone of Long Island. Round its shores are many pretty summer homes. The trees about it are much larger and more beautiful than elsewhere on Long Island. The waters of the lake are very clear and cold. In some places it seems bottomiess.

The strange thing about Lake Ronkonkoma is that it has a tide; not a tide like the ocean that rises and falls every twelve hours, but one that takes seven years to rise and seven more to The difference between high water and low water mark is between thirty and forty feet. Many scientific men have studied the curious phenomenon, but no one has found out what causes this mysterious tide. Nelther-long continued rains nor severe droughts affect the quantity of water in the lake.

The Indians used to hold the lake in great awe, and few dared to cross it in a canoe. There is a legend of one brave who, while fishing, was drowned in the lake. His body was found six months afterward nearly ten miles away in Long Island sound.-Youth's Companion.

Points Mothers

Dressing the Baby.

Mothers seem to be divided in their opinion of how to dress the baby, but their ideas are generally so extreme that they can easily be divided into two classes—the sensible, who believe in simplicity, and the foolish, who try to see how fancifully they can dress their little tots.

The elegance of baby's clothes should always be interpreted in fineness and not by fancifulness, if its little slips are to be the most beautiful they should be of the finest hand woven ingerie cloth and made so daintily that the eye can scarcely perceive the stitches in their narrow seams. That real beauty and luxury for the baby. That is

The baby's first slips are the prettiest in the plain bishop style—finished with very narrow valenciennes lace edging around the neck and sieeves and brier stitching at the top of its hem. wear you may want a slightly more fauciful dress, with tiny hand embroidered yoke in the front marrow tucks running to the neck in the back) and dainty embroidered flowers strewn here and there above the hem. Of course hemming always makes a desirable finish at the seams and is not ornate.

The infant's petticoats should be inst as fine and plain as its slips. And in winter its "heavy" petticonts should be of the finest French flannel, so that they will not wash together and be-come weighty and bulky. The flannel petitionts should be finished with bri-er stitched hems. All petitions should be made with little waists or wide waistbands.

Juvenile Nerves. With highly strung children there is often a readiness to pick up nervous tricks from their elders. Thus from one a child learns to stammer, while from another it adopts various nervous movements of the muscles of the face or limbs. Such a child needs to be well fed and kept as much as possible in the open air, to lead a quiet life without excitement and without overexercise of the brain. Above all, it must be kept as much as possible away from those people from whom it seems to be taking the tricks of nerve ousness.

Reserved Boys. Mothers, don't be too ready to think that your boy shows a want of trust in you if he occasionally keeps a se-cret or omits to tell you every little thing that he has done. Many boys are very reserved. They cannot bear to speak of what they feel deeply. Make your son understand that mother will always be glad to hear what he chooses to tell her, but that she does not want to force his confidence. Then he will speak much more freely to you than he would do if he felt that you were "always after him."

Screwing Up the Eves

Disastrous to beauty of a child's pression is the habit of screwing up the eyes. The trick points very plainly to defective vision and calls aloud for a visit to an oculist. The visit must not be delayed, for ugly wrinkles round the eyes is the least evil of this defect. A shortsighted child is se-verely handicaped when it begins its school life, and neglected myopia leads to serious eye trouble in later life. Properly prescribed spectacles are all that is required to end this particular Mouth Breathing.

Mouth breathing, which is one of the signs which point to the presence of adenoids, can only be cured by going to the root of the matter and have ing the adenoids removed by operaa wise precaution to do as the Indian squaws do, and that is to press the lips of the young child together when he first falls asieep.

Solid Foods.

The importance of never allowing a "taste" of ordinary food while the haby is small can hardly be overesti-mated. Not so much as "a crust or hite" should be allowed before be to nine or ten months old, and even that is better postponed until after the first year is completed.

Increase in Height.
Although perfectly healthy children differ greatly and no fixed rule is possible, the average child increases in beight an inch a month between the second and fourth months. After this up to a year, a balf such a month

Maple Leaf Flour Mill again in Operation

The Maple Leaf Flour Mill began operations early this week with a staff of five men including the head miller G. H. Waite, formerly of the Western Milling Co, of Calgary. The mill will be run on a co operative plan whereby the farmer can exchange his grain of any kind for a proportionable amount of first grade flour, fully guar-

The milling machinery says Mr. Waite is modern and up-to-date and the best quality of flour is absolutely

The chop mill will be open daily for the trade and this new departure is expected to prove a boon to the farm ers. The oat flaker is also in operation for making the best grade of horse feed, at a charge of eight cents a hundred. Every convenience is afforded the farmer for loading and unloading, and every curtesy is shown

It is well to note that in Didsbury feed grinding is done at 8c a hundred a difference of 2c less than any other point, with the additional extra conveniences to be found nowhere outside the large centres.

Farmers are assured of getting their correct weight of chop, and they have the privilege of re-weighing their loads before leaving the mill.

Grain buying will be carried on extensively either by load or carload lots with special bids for the latter. The highest market prices will be paid for the grains and proper grading will be strictly observed.

Mr. Weber announces, as this is the opening of the mill since the disas trous fire of three years ago, he is destrous of getting the patronage of the farmers in this vicinity and would appreciate their custom by fair dealing and guaranteed quality.

The Origin of the Christmas Tree and Its Significance

The time is now drawing near when we are to have the privilege of commemorating the greatest event that has even come to mankind, namely the birth of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. This event which is of such vital importance to us should be celebrated with reverence and we should also remember what it signifies and what it means to the world.

I just wish to briefly mention the origin and significance of the Christmas tree.

In Stratsburg, Germany, in the year 1604 the people set about to find a proper way of commemorating the birth of Christ, so the congregation chose a committee to arrange for a celebration of Christmas. This committee united in ardent prayer for divine guidance and in answer to their prayer they had a vision in which three angels, Faith, Hope and Charity appeared before them. These guided them into the wood.

When they reached the wood when grew many beautiful evergreens, Faith said, "This is the only tree that bears the cross to represent the cross on which our saviour was crucified," Then Hope said, "This is the tree that is ever green to remind mankind of the everlasting life", and Charity said' "This is the only tree that gives shelter in the cold and stormy winter to the animals of the for-

They then chose the most perfect evergreen tree, cut it down and raised it in the church to represent Christ cut down in the prime of his years on earth and raised again.

The body of the tree represents the Saviour, the limbs the different denominations which outsprung from him, and the needles signify the people. If a timb or needle is cut off from the tree it will

An Analysis of the Calgary Oil Flotations

NO. 2—ROCKY MOUNTAIN OIL FIELDS, LIMITED.

The "Albertan" published an analysis of each of the oil companies eperating in Calgary, taking one each day. The following extract is from analysis No. 2, which appeared on the front page of the "Albertan" in the issue of October 30th, 1913.

The directors of the Rocky Mountain Oil Fields, Limited, which is one of the older of the new oil companies formed in Cal-Mr. Robinson has been in Calgary for about fifteen or twenty years, for some years in the dry goods business. His reputation is above suspicion. He is a shrewd, honest and careful business man. He made good. S. E. Bevertand of the first part of t idge is one of the Beveridge Bros., who own the Beveridge block, and is interested in many prominent enterprises in this city. He is a man of ability. A. F. Landels has been in this city for a number of years, and has made good. Every person knows Ald T. A. P. Frost. He came to Calgary first as a Baptist minister and later went into business here. He is a very bright and able man. J. C. Milligan is a civil engineer, a member of the firm of Messrs. Duffield, Milligan and Riddell, a director of the Yohn Marble Co. Ltd. Marble Co., Ltd.

The Albertan refers to the directorate, believing that however well guarded the corporation is, that the methods of the company will depend largely upon the men in charge. If the directors ar square and honest the public will get a fair deal. If they do not deserve the confidence of the public their company. must be under suspicion.

- Though among the directorate of this company there is not a practical oil man, as far as we know, yet all are successful business men. They are the kind of men who, we believe, will deal fairly with the investors. They are not wildcatters. The Albertal tan considers that of importance.

The Company's Properties.

The company a Properties.

The company has about 1,920 acres of land, situated from three to eight miles from the Dingman well. It is capitalized at $100,000. The company has purchased, presumably, from the directors, the oil leases in question for $50,000, which means at the rate of $26.00 an acre. It is asking the public to purchase 10,000 shares at $5.00 per share, to proceed with the development.

The first question that will occur to the public is the value of the oil leases. That is most difficult to determine. There is no standard of value.

no standard of value. Some leases sell for $15 an acre, and in the adjoining section the same leases may sell for five times that amount. But compared with the figure which leases are commanding in that vicinity, the price is reasonable. As a matter of fact, it is rather low.

The best property held by the company, if present indicawhich is about three miles from the well. This is well situated geographically and geologically. The Albertan knows that land no more promising is being held for $100 an acre. If the rights owned by the company are worth anything they should be worth half that amount. But they may not be worth anything.

The half section in 29-20 3, the next most valuable property. as present indications go, is worth about as much though further from the Discovery well. The other properties are less valuable.

In a present day speculation, present day prices must be taken into our location. We doubt if any person could go into the field with $50,000 cash and nick up as desirable leases for that price. So the price cannot be called unreasonable though the land may turn out to be worthless. Is it a Good Investment?

The next question is whether or not it provides a good investion. If the specific provides is to do no speculating, he should certainly keep out of this as well as every other oil investment in this district.

The investor may buy stock in this concern and lose every cent of it. If the Dingman well should not come along as well as expected, and the district proves to be only moderately productive, or these special properties prove to be dry parts of an oil district, all of which is not impossible, then the investor would lose money. But that must be the chance an investor takes in every oil company organized.

Here is the other side of it.

The Dinorman well, according to report, is already paying upon a capital atton of $150,000. That is with one well.

If the company should strike oil which produced 15 parrels which is a very small yield, the investor would make 40 and well are which is a very small yield, the investor would make 40 and well are well as a very small yield, the investor would make 40 and well are well as a very small yield, the investor would make 40 and well as a very small yield, the investor would make 40 and well are well as a very small yield, the investor would make 40 are well as a very small yield, the investor would make 40 and 10 are well as a very small yield, the investor would make 40 are well as a very small yield, the investor would make 40 are well as a very small yield, the investor would make 40 are well as a very small yield, the investor would make 40 are well as a very small yield, the investor would make 40 are well as a very small yield, the investor would make 40 are well as a very small yield, the investor would make 40 are well as a very small yield, the investor would make 40 are well as a very small yield, the investor would make 40 are well as a very small yield, the investor would make 40 are well as a very small yield, the investor would make 40 are well as a very small yield, the investor would make 40 are well as a very small yield, the investor would make 40 are well as a very small yield, the investor would make 40 are well as a very small yield, the investor would make 40 are well as a very small yield, the investor would make 40 are well as a very small yield, the investor would make 40 are well as a very small yield, the investor would well as a very small yield, the investor well as a very small yield, the investor well as a very small yield, the investor well as a very small yield. would be a good investment. It is said that the Dingman well is now producing 15 barrels a day.

Here is another way of looking at it. On the market yesterday, offers of 68 were made for stock in the Dingman company. That would mean that the well was looked upon by investors as worth over one million dollars. The property of the Dingman syndicate outside of the section in which the well is situated is more valuable than the entire holdings of the Rocky Mountain

If the company strikes oil in paying quantities, the investor or speculator will increase his money by four or five fold. If it does not strike oil, he will lose his money. Is it worth while? The man with the money must decide. It is for him to ay.

the babe in the manger at Bethlehem. Candles were placed on the tree to represent the light which Jesus shed over the world, the gifts were then hung on the tree to represent the great and wonderful gift which God gave to the world, even his only Begotten Son and a picture of the babe in the manger was then placed before the tree.

After these arrangements were made the children circled around the tree and sang songs of praise to God for his great-est of all gifts to fallen man. Seventy six years later in the year 1680

A man who went away from home some time ago to attend a convention was struck with the beauty of the little town in which the gathering was held. He had plenty of time and in wandering about walked into the village cemetery. It was a beautiful place, and he walked around among the graves. He saw a monument, one of the largest in the cometery, and read with surprise the inscription on it:

A Lawyer and an Honest Man.

The man scratched his head and looked at the monument again. He read the inscription over and over. Then he walked all around the monument and examined the grave closely. Another man in the cemetery approached and asked him:

Have you found the grave of an old friend?

and Health Restored by

Nerviline

We have all read and heard of the agonies of sciatica, but only those who have been tortured by this dread malady can fully appreciate what it must mean to be cured after years of suffering.

It is because he feels it his solemn duty to tell to the world his faith in a serviline that Victor P. Hires makes the following decaration. "For three years I was in the Royal Mail service, and in all kinds of weather had to meet the night trains. Dampness, cold, and exposure brought on sciatica that affected my left side. Some times an attack would come on that made me powerless to work. I was so nearly a complete cripple that I had to give up my job. I was in despair, completely cast down, because the money I had spent on trying to get well was wasted. I was speaking to my chemist one day, and he recommended 'Nerviline.' I had this good liniment rubbed on several times a day and got relief. I continued this treatment four months and was cured. I have used all kinds of liniments, and can truthfully say that Norviline is far stronger, more penetrating and infinitely better than anything else for relieving pain. I urge everyone with lumbago, neuralgia, rheumatism, or sciatica, to use Nerviline. I know it will cure them."
